New Opioid Data

Recently released data from the CDC shows Oregon's analgesic poisoning death rate to be "significantly higher" than the U.S. average, according to the CDC's report. New data from SAMHSA OAS also shows that use of nonmedical painkillers is slowing among females, yet increasing in males.

More and more programs are looking for alternative "pain management." Beverly Thorn, Ph.D. is rapidly becoming one of America's leading experts and researchers on the subject of "Cognitive Pain Management." Her book Cognitive Therapy for Chronic Pain: A Step-by-Step Guide is available through Guildford Press.

NAADAC Press Release

NAADAC, the Association for Addiction Professionals, recently held elections to determine who should be their newest President-Elect. Robert Richards, an addiction professional from Eugene Oregon, won the race and begins his presidency in September.

NAADAC is the largest membership organization for professionals in the field of substance abuse. Their national scope reaches 10,000 members and 43 state affiliates, offering education, training and certification to thousands of people, including social workers, counselors, administrators, and others. By further professionalizing the addiction field through national certifications and education standards, NAADAC increases the reputability of its members and extends this opportunity to all addiction professionals. Richards has been an addiction professional for over 25 years, working as a counselor, clinical supervisor, administrator and educator. Currently, he is the director of two treatment facilities in Eugene, Oregon: a residential detoxification facility, and a men's long-term residential facility. "I believe that as addiction professionals, our first priority must be the client. However, as a membership organization, the first responsibility of NAADAC officers and board members must be to our members," said Richards. He has a great deal of NAADAC experience, as a former Treasurer, Northwest Regional Vice President and board member, and at AADACO (The Oregon Association of Addiction Professionals), as a board member and past President. In addition, he has showed commitment to the organization by joining a number of committees, including the Finance Committee, which he chaired, the National Certification Commission/NAADAC Ad Hoc Committee, which he co-chaired, the Personnel Committee, the Membership Committee, the Bylaws Committee, and the Veterans Committee. Richards has been involved with many other projects in the field, including a detoxification taskforce and a heroin taskforce, working with the State of Oregon Office of Mental Health and Addiction Services as a peer reviewer, and training other counselors on advanced counseling skills, sociology of addiction, cultural aspects of addiction and other topics.

As President, Richards has strong goals for the future. "If we are to endure as a profession and an organization (and we will), it is going to require the utmost in teamwork, advocacy, strategic planning and strong fiscal stewardship. I renew my commitment to all those needs as well as working to ensure that NAADAC continues to offer the highest level of credentialing, education and other services to our members."

California Proposition 19

The Control and Tax Cannabis Initiative, has gathered enough signatures to make it to the November Ballot in California. It has been assigned the infamous number "19." The last time California had a "Proposition 19" was in 1972 for - you guessed it - the legalization of marijuana.

The Prop 19 website touts:

- Control cannabis like alcohol: Allow adults 21 and older in California to possess up to one ounce of cannabis
- Give local governments the ability to tax the sale of cannabis to adults 21 and older
- Generate billions of dollars in revenue to fund what matters most in California: jobs, healthcare, public safety, state parks, roads, transportation, and more.
